

ABSTRACT

Systems and methods are disclosed to improve a transmitter output signal. In one aspect, a correction system includes a power detector that provides an indication of power associated with a transmitter output signal. A compensation
5 system employs the indication of power to compensate for at least one transmitter impairment affecting the transmitter output signal.